About RENEW

2020 was a challenging year yet fulfilling one for RENEW. It's been a year of joy and triumph as Her Majesty Gyalum Sangay Choden Wangchuck, the founder of RENEW received the prestigious UN population award 2020. The award holds a special significance as it is a testimony to Her Majesty for her efforts in working tirelessly towards the development and promotion of sexual reproductive health & rights and gender equality in Bhutan. It has opened up wider avenue for RENEW to carry forward its missions to realize "A Just equitable and happy society".

RENEW saw its services expand and most useful at that end with the establishment of RENEW vocational training center. As many as 294 vulnerable women and girls; and those who were severely affected by the Covid-19 pandemic were trained on alternative livelihood opportunities with the support from its national and international development partners.

Despite the challenges RENEW faced against the necessary lockdown, it continued to provide support services to its clients through social media and helpline. RENEW was able to strengthen its network with other key agencies and community volunteers to ensure timely services to the survivors of gender based violence especially during the lockdown.

RENEW is pleased to bring out its annual report 2020 as a gratitude to all the partners for their contribution to its achievement.

Building Capacities of Community Workers: Awareness, Training, & Education

A three day training workshop was conducted for a total of 97 VHWs along with village tshogpas (local leaders) and Community Based Support System (CBSS) volunteers of Bumthang, Zhemgang and Tsirang District from 30th November-7th December 2020.

They were trained on the usage of toolkit on Gender Based Violence (GBV), Adolescent Sexual Reproductive Health & Rights, HIV/AIDS, Maternal Health & Child Care. The training workshop was conducted by RENEW with support from Ministry of Health and District Administration. A combination of participatory methods were used which includes power point presentation, pictorial toolkit, smaller group exercises, discussions, audio-visual and individual sharing.

The objective of the training was to train the VHWs and the Tshogpas to further roll out the toolkit in their communities. Beside training the VHWs as agents of change in their communities, the training programs also aims to build local volunteer partnerships and further the individual civic responsibilities by ensuring integration of gender based violence into their local development plans. Additionally, the workshop was able to connect CBSS (Community Based Support System) volunteers with gewog level action groups and hence, taking RENEW's cause to every pockets of the dzongkhags.

Participants from Bumthang Dzongkhag

Participants from Zhemgang Dzongkhag

This is first of its kind program with all the VHWs and Tshogpas for all three districts. For some participants, this was the first time they were formally engaging with a RENEW spearheaded program. While the VHWs developed actions for the program, it was found that their subsequent program could also be translated into Health and district achievements. With this program, the outcome was that there was huge integration of District, Health and RENEW plan of action. Participants who were Tshogpas committed to take it as a priority agenda in the local gewog planning. At the end of workshop, the participants were clear about the need to look at health and social issues wearing the same lens.

Participants from Tsirang Dzongkhag

Through the workshop, RENEW was also able to bring CBSS volunteers and grass root action groups together. With this partnership, RENEW’s vision of empowering communities to work together to eliminate GBV/DV will be achieved. The program was supported by IPPF-DFAT.

International Day for Elimination of Violence Against Women

Bhutan joined the world to celebrate the day with the theme “Orange the world: Fund, Respond, Prevent, Collect”. The main event took place at the Tara Lhaden Zhingkhom Lhakhang in Pangri Zampa, Thimphu. The event commenced with the prayers and offering of butter lamps to honor the lost lives those negatively impacted by the COVID 19 pandemic globally. The occasion was graced by Her Majesty, Gyalum Sangay Choden Wangchuck. A few dignitaries and members from national and international agencies attended the event.

The Royal Patron and the Founder, Her Majesty the Queen Mother Gyalum Sangay Choden Wangchuck addressed the nation during the observation of the International Day for the Elimination of Violence Against Women, 25th November 2020

Today as we mark the International Day for Elimination of Violence against women, we join the global communities' effort to end all forms of violence against women and girls around the world.

Gender based violence remains one of the most widespread violations of human rights across the world. The issue knows no social or economic boundaries affecting globally 1 in 3 women and in Bhutan 2 in 5. A collecting all encompassing response to this is issue is a crucial to end the cycle of violence.

Decades of dedicated effort by civil society organizations, women groups supported by partner agencies ending violence against women is now a top priority on national and international agenda. Leaders across the world have recognized that eliminating violence against women is a critical aspect of sustainable development agenda.

At the National level, we persist to initiate to nurture, educate and empower women and girls to realize their full potential. Legislations and establishment of National Commission for Women and Children, Women and Children division under Royal Bhutan Police, family bench in the district court and support to CSOs has enabled us to eliminate violence against women and children. Significant progress has been made in expanding access to quality multi-sectoral responses for survivors covering safety, shelter, health, justice and other essential services.

Concerted efforts by various stakeholders and partner agencies have contributed immensely to prevent, protect and assist victims of violence. Yet while we have made significant progress towards gender equality and ending VAW, efforts have been fragmented with many who continued to face violence in their everyday lives. It is important to persevere and not lose momentum.

Today the COVID -19 pandemic is posing profound difficulties to the way we live and work. This crisis is a challenge to our values, our resilience and shared humanity. Unemployment, loss of income, disruption of services and supply chains, lockdowns and extensive domestic stays has driven up the incidence of domestic violence and sexual exploitation both at home and across the world.

Our volunteer networks in several dzongkhags have flagged increasing reports of domestic and sexual violence during the COVID-19 lockdown period. This has heightened the demand for emergency shelters more so than before causing constraint to our resources. Many more women and girls continue to suffer in silence and remain isolated from the people and resources that can best help them.

If left unaddressed the existing crisis of violence against women and girls is likely to worsen in the context of COVID-19. I am very concerned that the crisis will grow with multiple impacts on their wellbeing, their sexual and reproductive health and mental health. This is a critical time and swift action is needed.

I urge the government, civil society organization and partner agencies to enhance public awareness and understanding of the increased risk of violence in homes during lockdowns. Safe access to services during the pandemic or any emergency situation must be ensured.

I am very hopeful that every individual will take a stand to discourage the practice of violence against women and children in your communities. It is important that individuals and families engage with each other in positive ways and remain mentally and physically healthy during this stressful period.

We are truly blessed to be led by a visionary and compassionate King who has put in place every measure to safe guard his people from the COVID-19 pandemic.

The government's timely and robust response and intensive efforts by the frontline workers to suppress transmission of COVID-19 is deeply commendable. I thank the government and the Ministry of Health for ensuring access to reproductive health services during the period of lock down and limited mobility.

District multi-sectoral taskforces, community-based support system, Civil Society Organizations, UNFPA and other partner agencies were also an instrumental in reaching out to victims of domestic and sexual violence during this time. I thank you all and urge you to continue your efforts to foster safe and resilient communities who will not accept, excuse, or tolerate violence in their midst.

As we come together in solidarity to survive this pandemic, we lay the foundation for more resilient, gender-equal society and a healthier, more prosperous Bhutan

We must not only survive the COVID-19 crisis, but emerge renewed, with women as a powerful force at the center of recovery.

16 days of Activism International Day for the Elimination of Violence Against Women

International Day for the Elimination of Violence Against Women (IDEVAW) is celebrated on the 25th of November every year. The 16 days of activism aims to create awareness and celebrate the women survivors of gender-based violence as well as to show gratitude to all the brave individuals in our community that speak for women.

This year RENEW chose to celebrate this day by once again reminiscing the past. “REFLECTIONS: Words and Wisdom of Bhutanese Women”. RENEW with the support from development partners – UNFPA, UNDP and Royal Netherlands Embassy had brought out the publication to mark the milestones way back in 2008. Remembering our Bhutanese women of yore who have passed down their knowledge and skills to us. Their experiences taught us diverse roles that women can play in the society. The voices in the book reveal lives of Bhutanese women in different settings, and their stories are not borrowed but their own experience that makes all the more interesting and exciting. More we read through their experiences, more we get to reflect and appreciate their simplicity, bravery, their strength both physical and emotional, resilience, incredible power to endure any kind of situation. They have proved the leaders –community, political and religious wrong in their stereotypical belief that women are weaker and non- contributing members of the society. We can also see the beginning of the transition women and girls were going through leading to the positions/roles our women and girls are playing today. There is no looking back but move forward with full commitment to educate, nurture, and empower our girls and women and tap on their full potential to contribute to the development.

Zero Gender Based Violence, Zero Unmet Contraceptives and Zero maternal death by 2030.

TSIRANG DZONGKHAG

Messages from Dzongkhags

“Before COVID 19 struck us, nationally at least two out of five women suffered from mental, physical or sexual abuse in their lifetime, most frequently by an intimate partner. 71% of all human trafficking victims worldwide are women and girls, and 3 out of 4 of these women and girls are sexually exploited in the past year. The COVID 19 pandemic intensified the domestic violence as the tentacles of support services began to falter and accessing help became harder due to restrictions of movement.

Achieving gender equality and the empowering women and girls will require vigorous efforts. It is vital to address the deeply rooted gender-based discrimination that often starts from our homes. Today, as the international community observes this important day, let us each re-dedicate and pledge to work together for elimination of violence against women. Together, let us ensure that we heal our homes, communities, society and the country from the eclipse of violence and discrimination against women and any gender. Let us give our women and daughters the wings to fly towards the freedom that they aspire and deserve to achieve.” – Dasho Dzongrab, Mongar Dzongkhag

The lockdown phase has led to higher incidences of domestic and sexual violence in most of the Dzongkhags. Most young people are vulnerable to exploitation since they get lured by false promises on social media. A very unfortunate incident occurred where Bhutanese girls were a victim of human trafficking in the Middle-East case. It is an alarming fact that 1 in 4 women/girls are sexually exploited in other countries.

It is sole responsibility of parents to advocate their children on various forms of violence and fraudulence through social media. A constant reminder on Her Majesty’s vision to be tangible that is to create a violence free society; violence free Bhutan. – Dasho Dzongdag, Paro Dzongkhag

Congratulations to our Volunteers who received certificate of recognition from Her Majesty Gyalum Sangay Choden Wangchuck for their continuous voluntary service at Parizampa on 25th November 2020.

We wholeheartedly appreciate your time and effort.

Self Leadership

*I'm Glad I'm me.
Born as a slave,
But now a Queen.
Look at my crown
Shining and glittering.
That's how I win.*

*I'm light of my life.
Master of my destiny.
Just sweet as honey,
Precious than a diamond
Expensive like an almond.*

*I'm glad I'm me. (Genius)
Laugh to the fools,
Get to the flow.
Light up like dynamite.
That's the way I glow.*

*If you are lion,
Than I'm Dragon.
You talk about wealth and power?
Well I got none.
Cause I don't need one.*

*Though born in ditch,
But rise up by an angle.
Alone not lonely.
But more than enough
To prove you wrong.*

*Sun rises up and
Moon goes down.
But you are still little clown.
You will stop me?
Little pup!*

*You are too small
To hold me back.
You can't stop me
Loving myself.
But don't worry, you can still try.*

*This alone Queen
Will walk a road
Of happiness every day.
You think you know me?
Think again.*

The project created an alternative income generating opportunities to women and girls who were mostly affected by the pandemic. To ensure inclusiveness, beneficiaries are extended to other vulnerable groups who are equally impacted by COVID- 19 such as LGBTQ, People Living with HIV and other marginalized groups in the country. It is envisioned that through the acquired skills their scope for livelihood opportunities will expand, ensuring economic independence and stability. Economic empowerment is recognized as key in the realization of gender rights and equality. It contributes significantly to various aspects of their lives such as - ability to participate equally in the economy, have access and control over resources, decision making and control over their own lives and bodies, access to decent work, increased voice and participation at all levels in society. The benefits of economic empowerment expand from individuals to their families and children, through better opportunities for education, health and living standards.

Further, the project supported beneficiaries gain economic autonomy by connecting them with micro-finance services (through RENEW Micro financing) and providing them with opportunities to develop start-up proposals (through a partnership with Loden Foundation) to ensure that their acquired skills will contribute to tangible income and livelihood generation. Furthermore, upon completion of the training, RENEW intends to assist and connect participants to the market and help sell their products. In response to the COVID-19 restrictions, e-marketing and commercialization of their products will be explored.

In 2020 RENEW Vocational center organized 7 livelihood Skills training on 7 different areas of tailoring, baking, weaving, recycle products, floriculture, Cultural Performance Arts and Entrepreneurship.

A proud and special moment for us as we joined 75 young women in celebrating their lives' achievement upon the completion their training coinciding with auspicious day of Descending Day of Lord Buddha.

Some of these women learned weaving and tailoring over the past two months. Others underwent a month-long training in performance arts, while some tried their hands at floriculture over two weeks.

These skills trainings were offered as part of the UNDP-Supported Livelihood Project to empower and enhance resilience of vulnerable women, including survivors of gender-based violence and Drayang workers displaced by the #COVID19 pandemic.

The project is part of the Government of Japan funded project 'Towards a Smarter, Greener and More Resilient Recovery through Innovation in Bhutan'.
